Description:

Choosing a place to move into is probably up there with some of the largest decisions we make. Compound that with choosing a new home in a foreign country and it's an even bigger deal. We are extremely excited to bring this little gem to the market. Not only is this home nestled into the Normal Rockwell like setting of Puerto Cayo, Ecuador; a town without a single traffic light, it's also one of the few extremely well-constructed preexisting homes. This home has had one owner, the original owner, a doctor from Quito who has taken pristine care over it.

It is expected this home will not be on the market long. This fantastic home not only is designed to accommodate a very large family, it was constructed with the highest quality materials using architects brought in from Quito.

This home additionally comes already designed to serve as a dual use rental property providing it's owner with an immediate opportunity for rental income which we have clients that we could fill the listing with right away.

Here are the details:

- The home is 15 years old.
- The home has a full set of plans available, electrical, sanitary, architectural. (this is very rare to see)
